

FEMININITY DAY

Women's day is not enough, let's celebrate femininity as the only value for a peaceful future.

The women's movement represents a mile stone in women's history where commanding women leaders fought hard battles to better women's conditions paying the price of their precious femininity as they had to act like men to be heard in a world ruled by men. Today, our world ruled by masculinity is on the verge of destroying itself and women acting masculine to reach their purpose will only make matters worse.

Women now have a fundamental duty to society, the one of fully expressing their femininity, as it is the only antidote to aggression and violence. Women must continue to inspire themselves from the leadership skills of men to spread Femininity to all fibers of society from schools, to businesses, to governments so this delicate, refined expression of intelligence becomes the most honored, revered, praised and taught of all human qualities among the peoples of Earth and especially among men whose natural inherent femininity has been severely impaired by society.

This is what raelians have celebrated all over the world, performing naked choreography in the streets of major cities like San Francisco and Miami in the US over the week end and more today, on women's day, around the world.

In San Francisco, the performance took place in the gay community of Castro and 10th, one of the few places in the USA where nudity is no longer considered to be an offensive sight. In Miami, a large crowd on Lincoln Road followed the colorful performance, some of them begging to be part of it and holding our posters...(see more in the life of the movement section)

"To be naked in the streets of San Francisco was my way to express how fragile and precious life can be and to alert people on the importance of protecting all human beings on earth" said Nadine the leader of the raelian angel order in the US, an order that gathers all the women who are committed to develop their femininity.

She added "If every human being on earth had for only concern how he or she can bring more beauty and refinement to his or her environment, there wouldn't be any bomb exploding anywhere anymore for sure."

Here is an excerpt of teachings of the Prophet Rael about femininity:

Little boys are very sensitive, they can have strong emotions and cry looking at a beautiful thing but they are told that a boy cannot cry. So, they try to conform to standard models that are completely wrong. A boy must be like this and a girl must be like that. In reality, a human being is male and female at the same time. We have both characteristics, but among them, the feminine ones are the most important as men are more handicapped in their education than women. Women are naturally enclined to be feminine, delicate, refined, respectful of life and have a higher sensitivity.

Our creators, the Elohim, are extremely feminine, delicate, respectful, they laugh all the time, they are, they move in a very feminine way. They are refinement. They are beauty, and this is what is important. They are also extremely powerful as femininity doesn't prevent action.

To be feminine in one's actions, movements and thoughts is quite compatible with being virile as to be virile doesn't mean being violent. Our society has associated virility and violence. To be virile is not to be violent, it is to be a man feeling in harmony with his hormones and his masculinity. The more a human being refines his gesture, the more he refines his words and his thoughts. One cannot have a refined, subtle and sharp thought if one has a brutal attitude. Both are linked. To refine one's thought automatically refines one's way to move and to refine one's way to move automatically refines one's way to think. Our spirit and our body are one.

In our society, people are afraid not to conform. A refined young boy may be called a girl by his schoolmates and will try to conform and be less feminine. In doing so, he will lose the refinement he had in his thoughts.

If one wants to raise his level of consciousness, to have a sharper consciousness of what is around, the details of life, to feel the infinite better and to express the infinite better, one must refine oneself. It doesn't mean becoming a homosexual for men as this has nothing to do with sexuality. One can be heterosexual and extremely refined and on the opposite, be homosexual and show macho and unrefined attitudes. We must leave our paradigms about femininity and masculinity.

If you want to refine your voice, your delicate gesture, learn to dance on earth as we are all dancers....

Meditation Reduces Heart Disease Risk

A new study on the effect of meditation on blood pressure has been presented during the 63rd Annual Scientific Conference of the American Psychosomatic Society held on March 2-5 in Vancouver. The author, Dr. Barnes, and his colleagues from the Medical College of Georgia's Georgia Prevention Institute focused on 111 adolescents, 57 who meditated and 54 controls. They found among the meditators an increased ability of the blood vessel lining to relax, after 8 months practice. After 4 months practice no significant difference could be noticed between the meditators and the controls showing the necessity to practice meditation for a while before getting noticeable results.

This is exactly what the Prophet Rael has been teaching for the past 30 years. In December 1973, he was given by our Creators, the tools to live better on this planet, on an individual basis and on a collective one. Patiently He has been explaining these tools to those coming to His yearly teachings on each continent and the raelians can testify how significant the practice of meditation has been on their life balance. Today scientific publications are providing evidence of every one of his announcements. The next seminars given by the Prophet Rael will be in Las Vegas from May 14th to May 22nd. Remains of our Creators in Indonesia ?

The Hobbit's brain has some surprisingly advanced features

The famous skeleton unearthed in Indonesia last year that was nicknamed the "Hobbit" is at the center of a controversy. Some scientists think the tiny female belong to a modern human pygmy with a brain disease. However a detailed examination of the creature's braincase, published in Science magazine, supports the idea it is a new, dwarf species of human. The authors say that it has some very advanced features that harken towards modern humans. Those features are at the frontal lobe, the temporal lobes at the sides and at the back of the brain. This description of a small human being with advanced brain features living 10000 years ago on this planet also fits the description of our Creators.

Here is what the Prophet Rael mentioned about this news piece: Homo floresiensis...what a cute name for what can be the remains of one of the Elohim... maybe one of those who were condemned to live in exile on earth?

For more info on this part of our history, confirmed by scientific evidences every day, you may read the book, downloadable for free on our sites.

Panic among evolutionists

They have no way to explain how a complex pseudo mutation has happened twice

Modern mammals are unique among vertebrates for possessing three tiny bones in the middle ear that work as part of a chain that transmits sound towards the skull. Evolutionists believe this special arrangement happened in an ancestor that gave rise to placental animals including humans, marsupials and monotremes such as the platypus.

However a fossil discovered recently in Australia that belongs to an ancestor of the platypus shows a different bone arrangement. This means that the same complex mutation has happened twice along the mammal lines!!!

It is already quite difficult to explain how a "one bone" structure can evolve into a "three bone" one once, but now the evolutionists have the hardest task to explain how it evolves twice.

The full story is published this week on the magazine Science.

Palaeontologist Thomas Martin of the Senckenberg Research Institute in Frankfurt, Germany declared to the BBC: "I was quite shocked when I heard that such a complex morphological transformation happened twice."

Raelian scientists are not shocked when they read such a news piece as their list is long of the facts that cannot be explained by the evolution theory.

The scientific creationism theory is the only one that can explain the diversity and complexity of lives on earth and this is why so many scientists are joining the raelian movement now.

A highly recommended movie.... Our beloved Prophet said it is a seminar in images....

Don't miss : What the Bleep Do We Know!?

Here is a review to give you more

Documentary, Drama and Animation. 1 hr. 51 mins. WHAT THE #$*! DO WE KNOW!? is part documentary, part story, and part elaborate visual effects and animations. The protagonist, Amanda, played by Marlee Matlin, finds herself in an Alice in Wonderland experience when her daily, uninspired life literally begins to unravel, revealing the uncertain world of the quantum field hidden behind what we consider to be our normal, waking reality. The fourteen top scientists and mystics interviewed in documentary style serve as a modern day Greek Chorus. The chorus members act as hosts who live outside of the story, and from this Olympian view, comment on the actions of the characters below. They are also there to introduce the Great Questions framed by both science and religion, which divides the film into a series of acts. Through the course of the film, the distinction between science and religion becomes increasingly blurred, since we realize that, in essence, both science and religion describe the same phenomena. LIFE OF THE MOVEMENT

About Swiss discriminations

Une petite bière qui fait son chemin

Par Allan Tschopp

In the 70's, I was traveling the world, looking for a country where life is good I finally went back to my nest, telling myself: "OK, paradise doesn't exist on Earth, so I'll spend my life making the world into my dream, which is about what we are doing together." I chose to stay on my ancestor's land. I knew the place well, and the fact of it being in the heart of Catholic obscurantism was delightful to me.

There have been all kinds of fights, but this one, the one where on a shiny day in Fall, a restaurant owner refused to serve a beer to my national guide Philippe Chabloz, only because he was wearing his symbol, drove me crazy. We decided to get this dude, quite sure that he'd receive a life lesson.

But, when the decision from the highest court of the country fell, declaring him right, I thought that the country where I was a citizen wasn't worth more than the ancient south of Africa republic that still applies the laws of Apartheid. And once more, our Beloved Prophet who always sees further, and never lets anything pass, asked us to do an worldwide action to tell the truth and change those awful laws that allow any commerce owner to write on their shop "Forbidden To Jews" "Forbidden To Blacks" "Forbidden To Cults." The Federal Court lost it!!

The judges must have thought: They are giving us a hell of a time for a little beer! Yes, but the little beer hides a system of justice containing obsolete laws which leads to the suffering of a lot of people.

This is why on this Thursday, the 3rd of March, we woke up very early and met in front of the federal government palace in Berne, the Capital of Switzerland. We were told that the deputies and members of government arrive between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. We totaled about 20 with posters and flyers that we gave to the parliament. Lili Peace saw Micheline Calmy-Rey, dressed in red, one of the 7 members of the Federal Council, the higher governing body of the country, and gave her a flyer.

Jean Marc Chevalley recognized Fernand Chuch, a parliament member who is very influential, surprised by our action. It was fun to see men and women of influence enter the palace with our flyers.

2 p.m. This time we are in front of the important palace of the Federal Court of Lausanne. The place is rather quiet and it is quite warm. We felt like it was a cemetery with men and women passing dressed as coffin bearers. I think that it must be a sad job to deal with gloomy affairs all day long. I cannot not send them loving thoughts. The beer case had come to them like a ray of light, shaking them and showing them that something is not working in the country. Here as well, our message came in by the great doors. And what a pleasure, the same day all around the Raelian planet, we knock at the Swiss Embassy doors. We knew that we were well supported in our action. Thank you my brothers and sisters. Life is beautiful.

The Swiss teams were not alone.... Here are a few reports we received this week...

In Korea, by Blue

We had a demonstration in front of Swiss embassy with picket and gave the ambassador our letter to protest against brutal actions and laws by Switzerland. Although the ambassador was absent because of his official tour to other country, but our requests and protests were delivered to a representative of the embassy. Many policemen were mobilized, but not able to do anything. Because our actions were absolutely peaceful and lawful.

We also demonstrated in the streets nearby the embassy as there were many people, offices, and media in the vicinity as it is the center of the city.

We held pickets and spreaded many flyers about our requests.

So many people had a deep interests for our actions.

In Italy

We were in Milan (General Consulate), in Rome (Embassy), in Napoli (General Consulate). We were received with a lot of kindness and could give the letters directly to the ambassador and to the counsuls.

Kisses from Marco

In India, by Yaho, national guide

I was arrested by the Police because we had a demonstration in front of Swiss consulate, and it wasn't approved before.

The original plan was only to give the consul a letter to protest against Switzerland, and then have a march in nearby street. Because it's no problem to have demonstration in the street.

But so many people suddenly crowded around us and requested our flyers as we were in front of the door of the consulate for a while.

After about an hour, I felt the atmosphere became uncommon, thus tried to move to another place, quickly but it was too late, Indian policemen were surrounding us. They took us to the largest police station near Colaba, the richest town in Mumbai of India. I had to repeat writing same reports 7 times. And also they asked me same questions more than 5 times.

The vice-chief of the police station then started to have some interests for our messages and wanted to read our books after he got some answers from me by 5 times. Then he agreed our movement was right, and also felt a little anger against racial discriminations in Switzerland. At first, I thought I would have to pay a fine, but then I was very happy to explain our messages to him.

Finally, we got free after giving them our book, The message given by Extraterrestrials. J But illegal actions are just illegal ones so from now on, I'll organize demonstrations as shouting, dancing, and fasting at places where they are approved, legally.

I smiled for a long time when I was interrogated. And a smile made another smile, and then all people become smiling, together.

...The little beer has made a long trip indeed J ... better than the butterfly effect;-)

Celebrating Femininity Day in San Francisco

By Felix Clairvoyant

The famed gay community of Castro in beautiful downtown San Francisco was the site of the Raelian Movement's first Femininity day. Our nude street performance, orchestrated by our beautiful sisters, Nadine and Florence, was a huge success due to the brilliant teamwork of numerous Raelians both locally and from Las Vegas, as well as from around the country with advance press releases and calendar event posting.

The crowd began assembling as we transformed an ordinary truck into our stage, giving us an opportunity to show them what Raelians do best... have fun. Throughout our setup, virtually every member of our team was approached by people for comments, pictures, and diffusion. Our audience was extremely respectful and enthusiastic.

Our beautiful troupe, Florence, Crystal, Galiana, Celene, Michael, Thomas, and Felix graced our stage draped in soft pink robes and dazzling butterfly wings, an exquisite display of femininity, removing only the robes while Florence delivered an eloquent poem on femininity. This image of men and women in their nakedness and femininity was very well received by everyone in attendance and the simple but poignant presentation ended with our brothers and sisters holding hands, a symbolic gesture of solidarity. Nadine and Thomas were also dazzling in their articulate views on the role femininity will play in society, from a female and a male perspective, respectfully.

Following the presentation, all of our team members continued to walk among the crowd, diffusing, passing out fliers, while Felix, Nadine, and Florence conducted interviews. One of the journalists was with the largest newspaper in San Francisco. Afterwards, our entire entourage convened for dinner at a restaurant where we were joined by several newcomers (including the famous naked yoga guy who had a lot of media attention a few months ago and who came to offer his support). All wanted to learn more or just have fun as we relaxed in jubilation of the moment, love and pleasure of each other's company. A beautiful day in every sense, dedicated with passion and love to our Creators.

Having our monthly gathering the following day provided us with a wonderful opportunity to invite anyone with interest to join us. There were 20 people at the gathering with 6 newcomers. What an extraordinary weekend that will undoubtedly be remembered by many.

RAELIAN FEMININITY DAY IN FLORIDA: EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS ! by Andre Pinsonneault

Sunday March 6th in Miami, Florida raelians celebrated the Femininity Day with such sensuality and such success that even people who were not even raelians (they probably will find out soon) watching us in preparation of the march begged to join us and hold one of our 10 posters.

We had so many news media and interviews

thanks to the wonderful work of the Public relations that I lost the count, so many camera men and photographers followed us from the beginning to the end continuing to interview us even after the march was over.

The Angels lead by Lisa Lumiere were so sensual, everyone stopped what they were doing, It was for some the famous "Stop" that Rael does to us during the Open Mind Seminars. Some women even asked their husband to get closer and take pictures with one of the Angel; the atmosphere was at the very top of sensuality. People showed from the back of the stores and café terrasse begging for flyers. 1,500 flyers were distributed this way in less than 2 hours. Sophia gave such a magnificent show, which was filmed and photographed by us and all the media. She danced on the popular song of Shania Twain, "I feel like a woman", the whole crowd approached with their cameras and camera phones. The raelians transformed Lincoln road completely with a budget of less than $75.00, and the fantastic collaboration of 12 people. At the beginning when the group was dressing up or should I say down and preparing for the march the policemen came and checked with their superior about what was going on. There were so many people attracted by us that they had to ask for more effectives to control the traffic on the main street where we were. The policemen were so kind with us that they escorted us from the beginning to the end protecting us and opening the way through the crowd on Lincoln road. They were answering to all our requests, they were so proud to finally do something sensual and peaceful contrary to their regular activities. Many pictures will be on our Florida Event page at <http://www.usa.rael.org/events/Florida/index.html>

The Struggle of Black People in the 21st Century

By Hortense Dodo

I want to give you some feedback on the panel discussion I participated in last Monday on "the struggle of Black people in the 21 century". Overall the meeting was good. Damien and Koffi were also present, about 50 -75 people attended. Mostly students, some professors and some few activists from the community. The panel was made of 6 University professors from different professional background and religious aspirations. Each panelist was asked to make a few minutes of introductory remarks and the rest was a dialogue with the audience. What was positive was to initiate dialogue on this issue of paramount importance not only for people of African descent but for the whole of humanity.

Please find below a short summary of my presentation fully inspired by the vision of our Beloved Prophet for the development of the African Continent.

<<During the period of slavery, the direction of black people's struggle was physical freedom, during colonization, it was independence, during the civil right era, it was equality and justice, now, in the 21st century, it should be the strengthening or enhancement of the relation, link, partnership between Africans on the continent and Africans in the Diaspora including African Americans, Caribbean's,etc to together develop the African continent...Why is this important? Because Africa is the future of humanity and the development of the African continent is the responsibility of not only Africans but also those in the Diaspora. This can be achieved as follows:

(1) Cultural and religious decolonization

The value system of most Africans is an imported one which was forced upon the population during the colonial era through violence and torture.... Africans, should reject western-imposed christian religions and all other foreign religions (Islam etc) and return to their African traditional spiritual beliefs systems which were very beautiful such as the Dogons of Mali in West Africa and the Kibamguists of East Africa. African should embrace their traditional language, names, clothing styles, and value systems. Mao Tse Tung, former Chinese emperor, once said that a revolution must first be cultural.

(2) Social-political decolonization

Return to the socio-political organization of the African continent as it was before the colonial period. This means a return to a type of organization headed by kings, chiefs, divided along ethnic lines. (Example of the Akans in west Africa and the Tutsi in East Africa). Together, these confederations of independent ethnic states should establish the United States of Africa and use a unique currency the AFRO.

(3) Economic decolonization

- Africa should embrace the latest science and technology of the future including: Biotechnology, nanotechnology, internet technology. etc... they should inspire themselves of the example of Japan who within a generation was able to go from a poor low technology country to the leader in producing high tech equipment and one of the most powerful country.
- Newly created ethnic states should trade among themselves and have open frontiers etc...
- Africans build Europe and the US and the use of their free labor is the reason for the economic advances of these countries. Europe and the US owe an enormous debt to blacks... Therefore, Africans on the continent and in the Diaspora should demand to be paid retribution and continue putting pressures on institutions such as JP Morgan Bank which have benefited from slavery to pay retribution to the descendents of slaves in America and in Africa. Germany is still paying retribution to Jews' descendents, and why shouldn't Africans?
- Direct involvement of the African American Diaspora which constitute the 6th regions of Africa. Their technological and financial impact will have an enormous positive impact.

(4) inclusion of feminine leadership in the reconstruction of the African continent

Africa is the most at war continents, from East to West and North to South. Femininity values and the infusion of women in the leadership and decision making arenas will decrease the level of violence , aggression and increase the potential for peace on the continent>>.

Overall the discussion was interesting, However, I would have like the level to be more encompassing and more visionary, unfortunately, a lot of the discussions were the good old clichés and it seems that most of my presentation went above their head.

As Ricky said after reading your report dear Hortense, they may not have understood, but you certainly forced them to look up.... Congratulations dear sisterJ

Meanwhile in Burkina Faso...

Fespaco in Burkina Faso

At the occasion of the fespaco, a very popular film festival in Ougadougou, the burkinabe Raelians had a blast by giving the words of the prophet for Africa and Uriel's book, White Poison to a few celebrities who were there for the occasion.

Xciel (David Fofana) tells us:

Jean Marie TENO, Cameron cinematographer, who's last movie, "Colonial Misunderstanding" just came out during the fespaco festival wants to meet Uriel, since Uriel's book is in tune with his movie...

Amobé MEVEGUE, a Cameron journalist for Radio RFI and TV5 in France, presents shows that are well followed by the African diaspora. He wishes to have Uriel on his show...

SINDA Thierry, journalist of the feminine magazine, "AMINA" in France, spontaneously bought White Poison planning to share it with her friends.

Benson DIAKITE, Guinean journalist at RFI, asked for the book and read the title. He then said that he listened to Uriel live on Radio Africa n1 and that he wanted to invite him on his show. Sembene Ousmane, Senegal cinematographer (the oldest of the African Cinematographers) asked to get in touch with Uriel... Uriel will soon not know where to turn ;-)

For information, he will be in the Congo, in the company of Jerome and Banemanie, for the celebration of the first Sunday of April...

In Japan.... unexpected

A new biology book has been released that can be selected by teachers for 1st grade high school students in Japan. It is made of newspaper articles from the Asahi Shinbun, the 2nd largest newspaper in Japan. The subject of cloning is treated with an article about Clonaid that gives our vision on th subject !!!

Junzo, continental guide of Asia declared : At any event, this is the first time Clonaid was mentioned in such a textbook. We look forward to Maitreya Rael to appear in such textbooks."
